With an objective to facilitate the educational, social and personal growth of students studying the full-time undergraduate programmes, namely BEng (Hons) in Mechanical Engineering and BEng (Hons) in Product Analysis and Engineering Design, the Department of Mechanical Engineering has established a Mentorship Programme.

The objective of the Mentorship Programme is to establish a caring and supportive relationship between industrial partners, alumni and undergraduates, and hence to enhance students' future professional and career development and to empower mentees to face challenges in society.

As a formal kick-off of the programme this year, the Department has organized a Mentorship Dinner on 13 March 2009 at Renaissance Kowloon Hotel in order to establish a platform for industrial partners and alumni to share their experience and provide professional guidance to our students by serving as their Mentors.

The total number of participants was 201, including mentors, Chairman and members of MME Alumni Association, recent graduates, Year 3 students of the two undergraduate programmes and department staff.

During the dinner, Prof Jian Lu, Chair Professor and Head of Department gave welcoming speech. He expressed appreciations towards the support rendered by the industrial partners and encouraged students to make good use of the Mentorship programme to learn and gain as much as they can from their mentors. Dr Yau Wing Kwong, Chairman of MME Alumni Association was also invited to deliver congratulatory remarks by which he blessed the final year students to have a bright future to the road of success in Engineering field.
